

Apple IT Training

We are proud to offer a full range of training programs on Mac OS X and other key Apple applications and technologies. We provide various levels of IT training for professionals who are responsible for planning, maintaining, and integrating Mac OS X workstations and solutions using Mac OS X Server and other Apple technologies into their various network environments. Developer courses provide the knowledge required to properly build full-featured applications using the advanced developer tools available on Mac OS X.

Instructor-led courses balance concepts and lectures with interactive labs to provide Apple customers with a hands-on, real life learning experience.

MacTEK offers all levels of IT training for professionals who are responsible for planning, maintaining, and integrating Mac OS X workstations and solutions using Mac OS X Server and other Apple technologies into their various network environments. Instructor-led courses offer excellent demonstrations and lectures, mixed with hands-on, real-world labs and exercises to offer IT Professionals the most comprehensive training available.

Courses for help desk personnel, service technicians and technical coordinators are a perfect starting point, addressing Mac OS X client and server support and troubleshooting. Courses for administrators are for the full-time professional system administrators and engineers managing medium-to-large networks of systems utilizing Apple technology in complex multiplatform deployments. And to assist IT professionals in supporting the Mac OS X users in their organization or institution, we offer training to help users make the most of their Mac.

Courses are offered at MacTEK's training facilities or can be brought onsite to a customer's location. These courses can also prepare IT professionals to pass the various Mac OS X certifications offered by Apple Training.
